HDI-D & HDI-M: Pathway to Localization

INGEV prioritizes quantifying the indicators of human development that have a concrete bearing on everyday living.

A considerable portion of these indicators can be defined in relation to the local services and characteristics in and around the areas where people live and work.

The local level of government possesses significant capacity to positively affect the factors measured by such indicators.

UN-Habitat has led the research on the Voluntary Local Reviews, a global initiative aimed at providing local and national governments worldwide with knowledge on tracking their progress on SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS.

One of the key barriers to the expansion of VLR initiatives is the problem related to the availability of reliable data for targeting and monitoring.

HDI-D & HDI-M indices effectively address this issue.

HDI-D & HDI-M: Pathway to Localization

INGEV has developed an indexing system to quantify city- and district-level municipalities' progress in human development.

“INGEV Human Development Index” is created to focus on development at micro level.

As of 2022, all 81 city municipalities in Turkey were included and indexed in the research study.

INGEV TAM - Human Development Monitor (IGM)

IGM follows the perception, behavior and attitudes of the public in Turkey regarding the issues that are among the basic elements of human development.

In order to monitor the prevailing mood in the public opinion, we carry out surveys periodically, develop the results by taking expert opinions through roundtable meetings, and prepare evaluation reports.

Surveys are carried out according to Common Classification of Territorial Units for Statistics (NUTS) Level-2 criteria. The results represent the Turkish population.

The research is done by approximately 1500 computer assisted telephone interviews (CATI).
